Algorithm

A tech company has recently received media attention as part of an investigation about gender discrimination. A local reporter discovered that female employees in this company are less likely to receive bonus payments than male employees.

In a public announcement, the company responded that "bonus payments are determined on the basis of a series of formulas-- an algorithm-- that consider the performance and qualifications of the employees. Information about the gender of the employees is not imputed in the algorithm."

A group of workers started a petition against the company for gender discrimination. Would you consider signing this petition?

A tech company has recently received media attention as part of an investigation about gender discrimination. A local reporter discovered that female employees in this company are less likely to receive bonus payments than male employees.

In a public announcement, the company responded that "bonus payments are determined by individual department managers who consider the performance and qualifications of the employees. Information about the gender of the employees is not used by the department managers to determine the bonus payments."
